Should College Athletes be Paid?

Should amateur athletes apart of the NCAA system should be paid for playing sports? It may be true college athletes have not been apart of a payroll system since NCAA has been established, though Colleges should pay their athletes and allow them to make income as non-amateur athletes with other marketing brands as well. The NCAA and colleges across the nations view the idea of athletes making money for playing at their college or universities as a negative impact, though paying college athletes can be a benefit helping them with a sense of financial understanding, comprehension over revenue and cost, having sports as a job is not the same as playing for fun, as well as its many pros and cons of making money.

Athletics at the college level is known as a billion dollar production and still continues to grow every year and athletics will continue to generate more money. College sports is and has mainly been described as just playing for fun, but it can be seen as a job as well. To be able to play in high school sports is completely different than playing for a college; requirements for both situations are completely different. Academic eligibility might be seen as one of the downfall of being a college athlete, but to be eligible students have to maintain being student athletes (necasports.org). College Athletes devotion and hard work is not something that should be done freely with out having something else in return with only the satisfaction of getting to play at that level. The strain and roll that is required to continue to play day in and day for for

Use of strategic plans in effecting strategic change for Exxon Mobil Corporation

Introduction

Exxon Mobil Corporation is a multinational oil and gas company that is based in America. It's a descendant at of the Rockefellers standard oil company and it was formed in 1999 from the merger of the Exxon and Mobil companies. It's headquartered in Irving, Texas. The company is one of the world's largest publicly traded companies and has been ranked the number one or number two for the last five years. By the end of the year 2007 the company's reserves stood at 72 million oil equivalent barrels while its production rates were expected to last for more than 14 years (Hrebiniak & William, 1984).

The company has 37 oil refineries in more than 21 countries constituting a combined daily refinery of approximately 66.3 million barrels. Exxon Mobil is recognized as the world's largest refineries and this title has been associated with the former standard oil since the incorporation in the 1870s. In addition to that the company is largest of the six recognized oil super majors. Exxon Mobil owns hundreds of other similar subsidiaries including the imperial oil limited in Canada and the sea river maritime which is a petroleum shipping company. Functionally the company is organized into several global operating categories including the

Thesis and Introduction Paragraph

- ▶ Your thesis statement ALWAYS belongs in the introduction paragraph. Make sure you pick a side and stick with it!
  - ▶ If you need help writing a thesis statement, please review the ‘How to Write a Thesis Statement’ PowerPoint under the ‘Content for the Week of 2/21-2/25’ under Thursday.
- ▶ For this essay, your introduction paragraph shouldn’t be more than a paragraph. Give a little context as to what has led up to Truman’s decision before introducing your thesis.
  - ▶ Give a little WWII info, talk about the Pacific Theater, whatever works for you.

Works Cited

- ▶ I DO NOT need a works cited page as long as you are using the 16 documents I have provided for you. If you do outside research (which you are welcome to do) and cite any of that information in your essay, then I will need a Works Cited Page.
- ▶ Remember, my notes/lectures are considered common knowledge and do not need to be cited in your essay.
  - ▶ Example: Harry Truman was President of the United States during the end of WWII. We all know that, so you don't need a citation to go with that information.
- ▶ There are no minimum or maximum amount of sources you have or need to use in your essay, however, it is impossible to write this essay without sources, so just be vigilant when writing your essay.

Quotations

- ▶ You can quote within your essay, HOWEVER, the rule in history is that you only want to quote when what the person says is so good, you can't say it any better. So quote less, paraphrase more. If you quote too much, it could lead to a low score.
- ▶ Quotations should be no more than 3 lines when typed. If your quote goes over 3 typed lines, then that is a block quote. You can look up online how to do a block quote.
- ▶ Example: Truman's Diary
  - ▶ In Truman's Diary, he states "The target will be a purely military one and we will issue a warning statement asking the Japs to surrender and save lives" (Source 1: President Truman's Private Diary).
  - ▶ In Truman's Private Diary, he describes how terrible the atomic bomb is and whether or not to use it on the Japanese. Truman understands that if the bomb is used to end the war, it will be detonated over a military target (Source 1: President Truman's Private Diary).

Final Thoughts

- ▶ DO NOT WAIT UNTIL THE LAST MINUTE TO GET GOING ON THIS! You can start your essay as early as today. Really.
- ▶ Thursday and Friday of next week are dedicated days to work on your essay, but again, you can start it now.
- ▶ Friday (tomorrow) and next Wednesday are dedicated days to work on annotating your documents.
- ▶ Your essay is due on Sunday, March 6th at 11:59 p.m. into Canvas. Any late essays will automatically be deducted 25%.
- ▶ Again, if you want me to take a look at your outline, rough draft, bounce ideas off of, I am more than happy to do that for you. Just don't wait until the last minute or I can't help you!
